Executive Director

January 15, 2007

Dear Senator/Representative:

This publication, "Jail Programs: A State and Local Partnership That Works", has been produced by the Utah State Department of Corrections (UDC). The booklet contains information regarding UDC's relationship with county jails in the state, how state offenders are placed in jails, and how the state and individual counties benefit from this relationship. I hope this information will be helpful to you.

Should you have any questions regarding the information contained in this booklet, or about UDC and jails in general, please contact me. My phone number is (801) 545-5730. Thank you for your support.

Cordially yours,

JAIL PROGRAMS IN UTAH

A State and County Partnership That Works!

Background

JAIL CONTRACTING

The Utah Department of Corrections and the 26 counties that operate jails across the State have formed a cooperative relationship serving all the citizens of the State. There have been significant savings through this relationship within their criminal justice systems while improving public safety.

For a number of years, the State prison system has rented county jail beds to house prison overflow. Originally, this was a small-scale operation using temporarily unoccupied beds in the counties. In recent years, counties have built many more beds than they will need in the foreseeable future so they can rent them to the State.

In 1993, Corrections was contracting for 117 county jail beds. Today, Corrections contracts for over 1,469 jail beds and is housing over 22% of the state inmate population in county jails.

CONDITION OF PROBATION

The condition of probation reimbursement program was established to repay the counties for the cost of housing felony probationers sentenced to jail as a condition of probation. Corrections was selected as the agency to administer this reimbursement program in 1983.

In 1993, the State of Utah allocated a total of $250,000 for condition of probation housing. Today, the budget is $10.3 million.

SUMMARY

Both programs have grown significantly during the past few years. Continued growth is expected and this county/state relationship will greatly benefit local jurisdictions and the State of Utah, if managed properly.

Benefits of Jail Contracting

STATE OF UTAH

The State of Utah has realized many benefits from participating in county jail contracting.

1) Cost savings for the State are dramatic. If Utah were to build prison space for the currently contracted 1469 beds, it would cost over $125 million. Annual operational cost savings for the state is over $11 million.

2) By contracting with the counties for prison housing, the need for additional State full time employees is reduced.

3) Inmates can be housed in their local areas near families, jobs and community ties.

4) Jail contracting allows the State to provide for inmate protection and house state inmates in smaller, more manageable groupings.

LOCAL COUNTIES

Twenty-two of the 26 counties (85%), operating jails in Utah, participate in jail contracting. This is evidence of the benefits realized through this state/local partnership.

1) The primary benefit for counties is the infusion of funding to help establish effective jail systems and to expand resources for future local growth.

The cost of jail expansion often is beyond the revenue stream of small counties. Finding ongoing funding sources to help pay off construction bonds is a necessary component of any expansion in jail space. The State of Utah offers a solution by contracting for beds in local jurisdictions. The funds generated by these contracts can then be used to offset the cost of construction.

State inmates housed in county jails also contribute significant labor which helps reduce the costs of operating the county jails. In addition, inmates have assisted in the construction of county jail facilities saving substantial dollars on jail expansion projects.

2) The overall economy of counties participating in contracting has been improved through the infusion of state funds. In some areas, the county jail has become a significant employer. Over 296 county employees have been hired as a result of jail contracting.

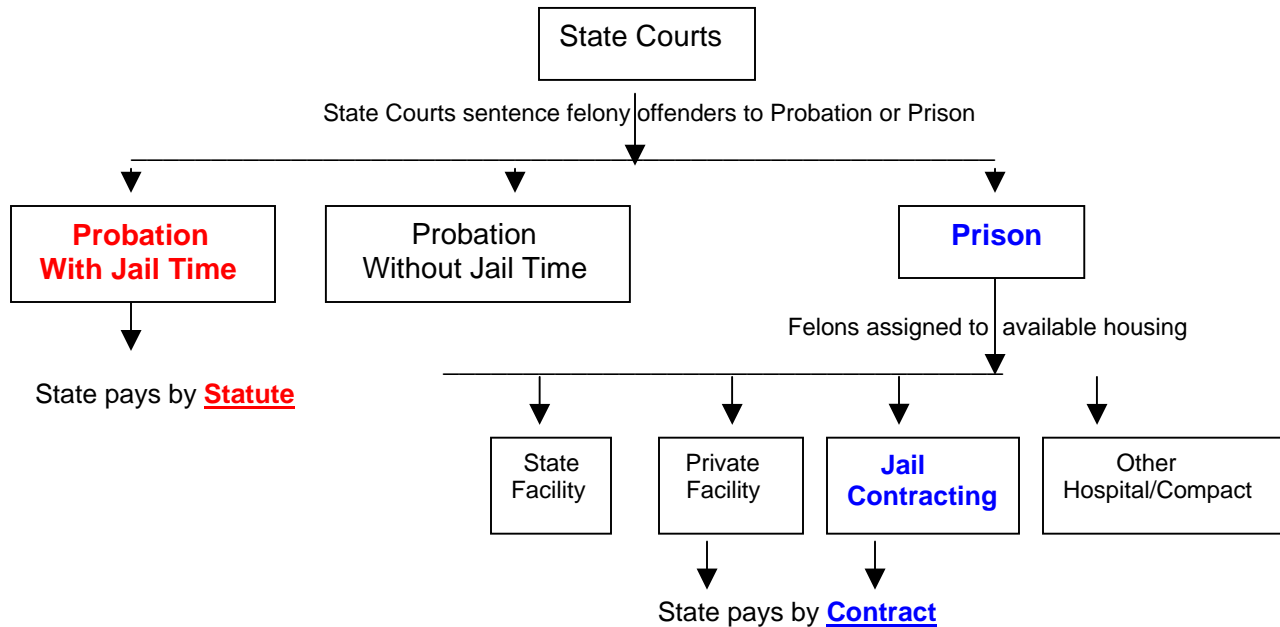

3) Contract inmates in the county jails provide labor for important community projects, such as repair of county facilities, assistance to the forest service and many community projects.

How do state-sentenced offenders end up in local county jails?

There are several ways that offenders sentenced by state courts end up in local county jails. Below is a diagram that outlines the two major programs under the State's Jail Program System.

Felony Offenders

Sentencing, Condition of Probation, Jail Contract Housing

CONDITION OF PROBATION

- Courts sentence to jail not to exceed 365 days
- All counties must accept prisoners
- Jails determine good time
- Courts retain probation jurisdiction
- Reimbursement set by Statute
- 70% of established core rate is paid

JAIL CONTRACTING

- Courts sentence to prison, not jail
- County participation is voluntary
- Board of Pardons has jurisdiction of inmate
- Bed cost is by contract and is 100% of the established core rate
- Medical and transportation costs are Corrections' responsibility

CONDITION OF PROBATION HOUSING

Offenders who are sentenced to a county jail, as a condition of their probation, typically serve a shorter period of time prior to their release to Department of Corrections' probation supervision. A reimbursement rate is set annually, and is approved by the Legislature. Each county bills the State based on each offender's billable days. The State audits and pays the counties based upon appropriated funding.

JAIL CONTRACTING

Offenders who participate in the jail contracting system are sentenced to prison by the court. The Department of Corrections places the offender in a county jail to serve a portion or their entire sentence. These state offenders serve more than one year and are typically placed on parole when they are released from prison. Corrections pays each county for housing these offenders.

Beaver County Community Service Projects or Other Savings To Taxpayers:

- State inmate inside jobs - $10,000/yr

In November 2006, the Beaver County Jail completed a new addition for their facility, adding an additional 200 State Inmate beds. The jail is looking at expanding their programming opportunities for State Inmates. They are planning to provide additional vocational skills programs such as the building trades program. They have expanded their high school education classes, and are planning on adding college classes. The jail is committed to allowing inmates the opportunity to program, with the hope that they will return to the community in a better state than when they left.

The Beaver County Jail is also the venue for Utah State Board of Pardons and Parole Hearings. The Board of Pardons usually conducts hearings for Utah State Inmates two days each month. Not only do the inmates who are housed in the Beaver County Jail appear for their hearings, but other State Inmates who are housed in other county jails are also scheduled to appear. The Beaver County Jail provides a central location for other inmates to be transported for their hearings.

The Beaver County Jail established their 6-month residential substance abuse treatment program in 2001. The Chaparral Program meets the A.S.A.M. criteria for treatment by providing Community Living, Group Therapy, Individual Counseling, Life Skills Classes, Drug Education Classes, Release Planning and Weekly Treatment Team Reviews.

Starting early in January 2007, the Beaver County Jail will operate an outside work crew to assist the county and other government agencies with various projects in Beaver County. Additional outside work crews are planned for the near future and inmate crews will be providing labor for many projects in the area. Beaver County Jail Staff anticipates that between 15 and 30 inmates will be used for various work crews. Information concerning savings to the County and the number of work hours provided by inmate work crews will be reported next year.

Box Elder County manages a work release program for county inmates as well as providing work release beds for State Half-Way Out/Half-Way Back Offenders. These programs assist the offender in maintaining stable employment to assist in their return to the community.

The Box Elder County Community Service Program maintains inmate work programs intended to prepare inmates for successful integration into our communities. Work programs benefit the inmate by teaching or reinforcing positive work habits. The program benefits the community by providing labor to accomplish tasks that may otherwise need to be funded by taxpayers.

Box Elder County has been very successful in the High School/G.E.D. program. Currently, there are 22 enrolled seeking their high school diplomas and 22 seeking their G.E.D.

Several new programs have been added this year. Inmates have the opportunity to fulfill their Offender Management Plan (OMP) requirements by participating in a variety of programs as listed above. The jail also promotes an inside work program with work in the kitchen, laundry, maintenance and also as tutors for school and life skills. An onsite greenhouse will open in Spring 2007, and will provide the inmates with jobs, horticulture skills, as well as the possibility of earning a Master Gardner Certificate.

The inmates finished construction on the new Justice Courthouse and the satellite Sheriff's Office in Roosevelt. They are also continuing their low income housing construction project on site at the jail.

Duchesne has also added a residential substance abuse treatment program. The program is provided by Don Lankford and Associates. Don Lankford is well respected by the Department of Corrections from which he retired in the summer of 2005. This program meets the requirements for the Offenders Management Action Plan (MAP) and has also created two AA and NA classes per week, which are supervised by the inmate mentors of the substance abuse program.

The jail administration plans to increase the population of State inmates when the construction is complete. The expected completion date is: Spring, 2008. Additional programming space is in the building plans, and a larger variety of programs will become available.

The educational programming is exceptional at the Garfield County Jail. At this time, there are over 30 inmates participating in the Utah State University Program. There are currently 27 inmates enrolled in the high school classes available, including English as a Second Language, G.E.D., and other curriculum courses. The new Auto-Cad course is a big success, with all spaces currently filled in both the beginning and advanced classes.

Each inmate is assigned to take care of their living area, make their beds, clean (dust, mop, etc.) and is rated each month on their work performance and attitude.

There is one paid inmate worker who takes care of many assignments in the jail. This is such a vital part of the jail operation, the jail staff does not like the inmate moved (even for a day) for Board hearings or other reasons. This inmate handles food service and laundry for other inmates, general janitorial work, and many other services as requested by staff.

At the present time, Kane County Jail offers only 11 state contract beds. The jail is used for inmates who have special housing needs, including the need for safety. Some of the inmates at the Kane County Jail were former officers who would be unsafe in a larger institution.

The Kane County School District provides a teacher to assist state inmates with their educational needs at the jail. Over the years, this teacher has been successful in assisting several inmates graduate with a high school degree or a G.E.D. There have been several cases where the inmates were not doing well with their educational efforts prior to moving to the Kane County Jail, but with the individualized help provided at this facility, they made significant progress in school.

Millard County Jail is one of only a few county jails providing treatment for offenders with substance abuse history and/or substance related crimes. The program is called Starting-Over and runs for six to nine months. Offenders are assessed and diagnosed to determine need for treatment. They use a modified Therapeutic Community (TC) approach. Community members use positive peer pressure to hold each other to a higher standard.

A key characteristic of a TC is the ability to adjust to changes necessary for personal growth. These changes come about by being held accountable for behavior (something very foreign to many offenders). The TC is separate from general population. They have a philosophy, motto, and cardinal rules to help govern the direction of treatment. Each community member holds a job (mostly unpaid) as part of the treatment. Addiction is viewed as a disorder of the whole person and treatment revolves around mental and social functioning issues, poor impulse control, thinking errors, as well as educational deficits.

In order to facilitate the classes and groups, peers hold daily morning and evening meetings, seminars, and special topic classes throughout the week. Staff members monitor and assist on a regular basis. Weekly group therapy and monthly individual therapy are paramount as an agent for change. As with any treatment, change is a personal choice. Millard County Jail offers offenders skills to help reduce the risk for relapse, thereby reducing recidivism.

Residents of Start-Over Program give back to the community by crocheting afghans, hats, booties, etc., that are donated to the local hospital, Newborns in Need, and other organizations.

The Millard County Jail also has a Road Crew that enables inmates to learn valuable lessons in responsibility and accountability. The crewmembers must be on time, work hard, and interact appropriately with supervisors and co-workers.

Adult education is an important program in the jail. In 2006, there were nine state inmates that received high school diplomas and five that received GED Certificates.

The Sanpete County Jail currently houses up to 4 state inmates. Because of the small size of the jail, the Department of Corrections uses it to place inmates with special needs or local inmates for regionalization. In the Spring of 2007, Sanpete County plans to build a new jail that would allow the state to house approximately 55 inmates. The expected completion date is June 2008.

Currently, the jail has two inside work positions for state inmates. The positions are for kitchen, janitorial and outside yard work. .

It is a computer-based program, which allows inmates the ability to earn their High School Diploma or G.E.D. It also allows inmates to work at their own pace on individual subjects needed for graduation. Credits earned are easily transferred to other facilities. There were 4 graduates from the program this past year.

Wasatch County School District provides educational opportunities to the state inmates at Summit county jail. These classes include GED preparation and high school.

As of January 1, 2007 a new life skills program was added to those already offered. It is called Peak Readiness Discovery. The emphasis of the class is "Your choices create your future. In that future education, work, money and lifestyle are all connected and you decide." The class will help prepare the offender for release from prison. It teaches fiscal responsibility and shows offenders how to prepare a budget to include housing, food, clothing, auto, insurance, monthly and annual expenses.

- Inmate Road Crew in Salt Lake County- $101,880/year
- Outside Work Crew – $133,200/year
- Inside Work Programs - $399,360/year

The Wasatch County Jail has reached out to the community again this year. Inmates have been involved in several service projects throughout 2006. Through these projects, the jail has given back to the residents of the county and to people in other countries. All of the service projects are done on a volunteer basis, and the inmates are not only willing to help, but also contribute new ideas for service.

This year, the jail made 150 school bags, which contained paper, pencils, rulers and either a matchbox car or a handmade doll. These bags were sent to Africa where our former Sheriff Michael Spanos was living. These bags will be passed out to the poverty stricken children who live in the small villages in Africa.

The inmates also participated in a project for the homeless. They made hats, scarves and mittens from yarn they purchased. These items were then taken to Salt Lake City area shelters at Christmas time to be handed out to persons who are in need.

The inmates who work in the kitchen made gingerbread houses again this year, to support the Wasatch/Summit Children's Justice Center. These gingerbread houses are displayed as part of the Swiss Christmas Celebration in Midway. The houses are then sold at auction to raise money for the center. The inmates' houses are always a highlight of the event and receive high honors and sell at top prices in the auction.

There are two work crews at the jail. Jail staff supervises these work crews, who provide grounds keeping and cleaning of city/county-owned properties. One of the buildings they have worked hard on this year was the new event's center. They assisted in installing all of the seats in the building and have helped to lay and remove the portable flooring depending on the type of event held in the center.

School is a top priority at the jail and we continue to have success with all the educational programs. In 2006, we had 7 inmates earn their high school diplomas from Wasatch High School, and 7 inmates earned their G.E.D.'s. This is not only a benefit to the inmates, but also to their families and the community. It opens many doors to them, which have been closed in the past. We plan on continuing these programs as well as others through the coming year.

Washington County Community Service Projects or Other Savings To Taxpayers: $815,000

- Work Crew for Various City/County/State & Federal agencies - $200,000/year
- Work Crew construction of the New Harmony & St. George Libraries - $160,000/year
- Work Crew for Department of Transportation - $60,000/year
- Inside Work Crews for Laundry/Kitchen/Janitorial/Tutoring – (based on 40 inmates working in these areas) - $395,000/year

The Washington County Jail Staff supervises three work crews for inmates. A fourth inmate work crew is supervised by the Dept of Corrections' Industries (UCI) Program. UCI has contracted with the Dept of Transportation to clean up trash along the highways in southern Utah, and their crew of six to eight inmates makes a difference in how our highways look. Three county crews work for many government entities in Washington County. These crews are always busy at the area golf courses; setting up or putting away displays, chairs, etc. for conventions at the Dixie Center; improving, cleaning up, or repairing the hiking/biking trails in the St. George area or in Zion's Park; they have various work projects in Snow Canyon State Park, Quail Creek State Park and Sand Hollow State Park; and they pull weeds and do other work for the various city parks and cemeteries in Washington County.

The inmates also provided construction labor in the building of the new public libraries in New Harmony and St. George. Inmates will also be used to assist in building the new State Public Safety Building just in front of the County Jail. The building is due to open in Spring 2007. The jail also intends to use the inmates on additional county construction jobs.

The contract for the Nail File Program between UCI, Washington County Jail, and DHS Products was not renewed. Apparently DHS Products chose to out-source with China. The jail was reimbursed $27,000.00 for the Nail File Project in 2006.

The jail currently has 16 inmates enrolled in the Culinary Arts Program. The jail also has an outstanding gardening program that provides fresh produce for the jail.
